

PHILOSOPHY

The Buechel Memorial Lakota Museum is dedicated to the acquisition, preservation and interpretive display of artifacts, photographs, documents and other similar materials relating to Sioux culture and the history of the St. Francis Indian Mission with a common ground for continuous dialogue between the visiting public, the local population and the St. Francis Indian Mission staff. The Museum, while being constantly alert to expanding its interpretive display capabilities through new acquisitions, must actively seek and promote objective criticism to insure its continued validity and accuracy.
